Learn4Health

In the globalized world food systems consumers, especially children are increasingly disconnected from the understanding of how and where their food is produced. This has an impact on eating habits and food choices that might affect health, the environment and ethical dilemmas such as animal welfare and fair trade.

Research show that by 'getting your hands dirty' and growing food you enjoy the way vegetables taste and form emotional connections with the garden. The physical and social qualities of garden participation awaken the senses and stimulate a range of responses that influence interpersonal processes and social relationships that are supportive of positive health-related behaviours.

For this reason and many more, we created Learn4Health, an Erasmus+ Strategic Partnership including twelve partners in total, representing 6 European countries; Denmark, Spain, Slovenia, The Netherlands, The United Kingdom and Lithuania with interdisciplinary roots.

Welcome!
